Creating a Culture Where People Thrive

Why Amanda:

Amanda does not have one 'speech' or keynote that is fixed. She creates experiences instead of delivering a speech and changes the culture of your event, people and company. Amanda's magic is her high energy, edu-tainment style. Her style stays the same but content can be totally tailored.

As an expert at communication and relationship building, which are at the root of all leadership, sales, customer service, culture and team performance, she can speak to all of those groups. Because of her expertise in group dynamics, psychology, neurolinguistics and wellness she can relate to any group for both professional and personal development.

If you are looking for a funny, scientifically based, content rich, skill building, engaging, energizing presentation, someone to create a great atmosphere at your event, help people embrace change, manage uncertainty, unite a dysfunctional culture or team, and grow personally and professionally then look for someone who has studied group dynamics like Amanda. She uses this, storytelling, science, interaction and humor to convey messages that stick in people's minds for years, connects everyone in your group and delivers practical, immediately implementable skills and tools.

Group dynamics refers to the capacity to focus both on the content delivered, as well as the way in which it is delivered – the process. Amanda has studied this for over 35 years. It's the process that creates the magic - a memorable session that delivers the specific outcomes you are looking for.

Amanda's material is based on the latest science (including the 'new' science of stress - which has life changing consequences, epigenetics, emotional intelligence, quantum physics and neuroscience), her own corporate experience and her studies in physical therapy, psychology, wellness, ergonomics, group dynamics, neurolinguistics and business.

The topics below give you an idea of what issues can be addressed. Feel free to 'mix and match' concepts to meet your needs. To see if Amanda is a fit for you, please connect with us.

Takeaways

- Upskill a high-powered corporate team (so they are communication and relationship masters!)
